Killary Harbour

Located in the heart of Connemara, Killary Harbour ('An Caoláire Rua' in Irish) is a fjord that forms a natural border between counties Galway and Mayo. Here, you will find some of the most dramatic scenery in Ireland. From the northern shore of the harbour rises Mweelrea, the highest mountain in Connacht at 814m. To the south you can see the Maumturk Mountains and the Twelve Bens. There are two small communities in the vicinity: Rosroe on the southern side and Leenane to the east. In the former, you'll find a hostel that was once a residence where philosopher Ludwig Wittgenstein stayed for some time after WWII, using it as a quiet place to write. Nearby you can also explore the so-called Green Road, a route that travels eastward along the side of the fjord toward Leenane. This road stretches for 9km and was built in the 19th century as a famine relief project. Additionally, this area is known for aquaculture, with a salmon farm operating at Rosroe and mussel rafts commonly spotted to the east.

2

Galway City

Galway City is a thriving, bohemian centre on the western coast of Ireland famous for its festivals, culture and characters. Known as the "City of the Tribes" Galway is a gateway to the unique Irish-speaking Gaeltacht, the Connemara and the Burren region and is a joy to explore with its maze of cobbled streets and colourful shop facades. With the opening of the Dublin - Galway M6 motorway and excellent public transport links, Galway is both easily accessible and a popular weekend destination.

Galway is also known as a festival city boasting many lively fun events throughout the year. It comes to a standstill every July for the seven-day Galway Racing Festival at Ballybrit racecourse. There is also The Cúirt International Festival of Literature, (April), the Galway Sessions traditional Irish music festival, (June), the Galway Film Fleadh, (July), the world famous Galway Arts Festival, (July), Galway International Oyster Festival, (September) and the Baboró International Arts Festival for Children, (October).

Galway Hooker Workshop

A special opportunity to engage with a community of volunteers while at work restoring the iconic Galway hooker in Galway Bay's working docklands. Learn the heritage behind these traditional wooden fishing boats that are synonymous with Galway. Gain insights into boat building methods and make your own mark by learning how to restore part of the boat. Followed by 3 hour tour of Galway Bay aboard a Galway Hooker with Skipper Ciaran Oliver (Great-Great Nephew of the last King of the Claddagh), who will share his family's history of the 7th Century Claddagh fishing community and the heritage associated with the iconic Galway Hooker.

With this historical backdrop you will experience Galway from a unique perspective, including the distant limestone landscape of the Burren (one of Ireland's designated UNESCO sites). This trip is a wonderful opportunity to take in seascapes that have inspired generations of poets, artists & musicians: the Spanish Arch, the Long Walk, The Claddagh, Nimmos Pier, & Mutton Island Lighthouse & Keeper's Cottage, with it's colony of seals & internationally renowned wildlife.
